NEWPORT, R. I.

THE NEWPORT MERCURY was established in June, 1783, and is now in its hundred and twenty-eighth year. It is the oldest newspaper in the United States, and has been published continuously since that time. It is a large quarto weekly of fifty-six columns, filled with interesting reading—editorial, local, and general news, well-selected intelligence and valuable information for the community. It is published at the rate of $2.00 per annum in advance. Single copies are sold at five cents. Extra copies can always be obtained at the office of publication and at the various news rooms in the city.

Local Matters.

A Knightly Excursion.

St. John's Commandery, No. 1, K. T., of Providence, with visiting Virginia Sir Knights as their guests, made an excursion to Newport on Wednesday, by special boat from Providence and landed at Commercial wharf about 1:30 in the afternoon.

A large delegation from Washington Commandery of this city, met the visitors at the boat, and after fraternal greetings, preparations were at once made for the drive over the route previously arranged for. In the first carriage leading the way were Sir Knights Jo Lane Storn and S. B. Witt from "Old Virginia," and Sir Knights W. J. Cozzens and F. L. Powell of Washington Commandery; the second carriage contained Eminent Commander Cotton of Washington Commandery, Eminent Commanders E. C. Walcott and J. H. Cypers of the Richmond Commanderies; Eminent Commander Heathcote of St. John's Commandery and the Grand Commander of Virginia. Then followed a large number of landaus containing the ladies of the party, followed by drags containing the visiting Sir Knights and their local escorts. Upon their arrival at the Life Saving Station at Price's Neck, they found that they were greeted by handsome decorations which Capt. John Waters had ordered put up, and also by the strains of "Dixie," which were well played by the Newport Band. Here, too, they found a tempting collation provided for them by the local Commandery. After the good things had been enjoyed they resumed their drive and had each and every place of interest pointed out to them. The return to Providence was begun shortly after the appointed hour, but not before the visitors had expressed themselves as deeply grateful to the members of Washington Commandery for their generous reception and entertainment and for the opportunity afforded them of viewing to the very best advantage our beautiful city.

The Middletown Branch of the W. C. T. Society during the session of the Friends meetings this week furnished a lunch table for those who attended the meetings. Mrs. S. W. Chase and Miss Lucy Brown with a corps of assistants were in attendance each day and were indefatigable in their efforts to please their many patrons, this table proved quite a treat to those whose residences were so distant from the meetings, and had it been more thoroughly known that so good a supply of eatables could have been obtained the patronage would have been larger.

Miss C. E. Brown of Boston, who has been employed at the Manisses at Block Island, has leased the hotel for the present season and will run it on her own hook. Miss Brown is a thorough hotel woman, having had charge of a large house in the south during the past several winters and being the proprietress of a large first-class boarding house in Boston.

Frank McGovern, John Halpin, John Tripp and the proprietors of the Aquidneck House, the Perry House and the Ambrose Dining Rooms were served on Wednesday with warrants charging them with the illegal sale of liquor and their cases, which were referred to yesterday's justice court, were further continued to Friday.

The owls at Stoneville await with patience the coming of their lord and master of the establishment, Mr. James Gordon Bennett. Their eyes glisten merrily and brightly in anticipation of his speedy return.

The graduating exercises at the Rhode Island State Normal School will take place at Norman Hall, corner of Westminster and Benefit streets, Providence, on Tuesday morning next at 10 o'clock. Quite a number of Newporters intend being present.

Rev. Frank Rector, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, will administer the rite of baptism to ten candidates, at the usual place near Fort Greene, tomorrow, Sunday, June 20th, at 9:30 A. M.

Rev. Philip Grace, D. D.

This distinguished divine and very excellent citizen, says the Season of Tuesday, enters this morning upon the twenty-fifth year of his connection with the ministry, he having been ordained a priest, at the grand seminary in Montreal, on the 14th day of June, 1862. With the exception of about two and a half years, he has passed the entire twenty-four years in Rhode Island and has accomplished a vast amount of good by his ministrations and his teachings. At the seminary in Montreal there were some five hundred students and he took from among them in all the scholarships. His first service as priest was at the cathedral in Providence, and afterwards he was sent to take charge of a church in Pawtucket during the temporary absence of Father Delaney. Subsequently he was sent to St. Joseph's, Providence, where the Jesuits now are, and had the care of that parish while the illness of Father Peter Kelly continued. At a later period he was curate at Hartford, Conn., remaining there ten months, when he was assigned to the charge of the interests of the church in Cranston. Here he made many friends who, to this day, continue to hold him in very high esteem. While in Cranston he cleared the church of debt, built a new chapel and vestry, and when he was sent to New London, Conn., left one thousand dollars in the treasury. In New London he bought the ground upon which a handsome Catholic church now stands, guarded the stone for the edifice, made the contract for the basement, and at the expiration of his two years' service there left the large sum of $5000 towards the completion of the structure. He then became the third pastor of St. Mary's in this city, a building that is considered by professional men as the most beautiful example of church architecture in this country. Dr. Grace succeeded Rev. Father Reilly as pastor of this church which is known as "Lady of the Isle." It is not too much to say that he has reared the present generation of Newport Catholics and reared them well. His labors in Newport will be his monument. When he came here he was confronted by a debt of over $800,000, but by untiring energy and his devotion to the best interests of his people, he has not only succeeded in wiping this out, but has long since built and paid for a capacious convent, and also paid for the Catholic cemetery in this city. The occasion of the consecration of St. Mary's in which Archbishop Williams, of Boston, the late Bishop Hendricken and some thirty or forty priests took part, will long be remembered by our citizens. The reverend gentleman, who is the subject of this little sketch, will have the best wishes of our citizens for his future happiness and for good health to continue his labors in their midst.

"The Silken Tie That Binds Two Willing Hearts."

Last Tuesday afternoon, Rev. F. W. Ryder, pastor of the First Baptist Church, united in the bonds of matrimony, at the house of the bride's parents, Rev. Richard Otis Sherwood, pastor of the First Baptist Church, in North Abington, Mass., and Miss Annie Stanhope Easton, only daughter of Major Henry T. Easton, in the presence of the family and a house full of friends. The ceremony over, congratulations and sociability were in order until the hour arrived for their departure by the 5:30 train for their future home in North Abington. Quite a number of friends accompanied them to the train and wished them long life and happiness.

The happy pair were beloved members of the First Baptist Church in Newport. The bride was for a long time superintendent of the infant department in the Sabbath School, and was pleasantly remembered by her little charges on this occasion.

On Friday evening, the young pastor and his bride were given a most pleasant reception by the members of the First Baptist Church in North Abington, and their families, and "all went merry as a marriage bell." The pair commenced their married life under the brightest auspices, and have the best wishes of all who know them.

Mr. O. S. Marden, the popular manager of the Ocean View Hotel at Block Island, recently tendered President and Mrs. Cleveland an invitation to spend the summer on that sea girt isle, offering the use of the handsome cottage just back of the hotel and the Ocean View steam yacht, but his Excellency declined with thanks.

Col. John Rogers has broken ground in the rear of his portion of the Narragansett building for a two-story addition, the lower part of which will be added to Mr. Rogers' store and the upper part will be used as a kitchen, pantry and steward's room for the Business Men's Association.

Mr. Wm. H. Weaver, formerly one of our Newport boys, son of W. H. Weaver, deceased, has lately returned from San Francisco, Cal., where he has been in business some fifteen years. He will now make his home in Newport.

School Committee.

The regular monthly meeting of the School Committee was held at the Committee room, Clarke street, Monday evening. There was a full board present, with the exception of Mr. Weaver, President Cozzens presiding. The committee on teachers made their report and in accordance with that report the following teachers were elected for the school year beginning in September next, with the salaries attached to their names.

There was considerable discussion over the salaries, but they were finally fixed as above. On motion of the committee on Text books, Children's Elements of Composition was adopted as a text book in the Rogers High school; twenty dollars was appropriated for the purchase of models for the drawing department, and the committee on text books gave notice that they should recommend the adoption of Harpers' Copy books at the next meeting.

It was voted to omit the regular meeting of the school board in July and August and the chairman was authorized to call a special meeting at any time when necessary.

June 21 being a holiday this year it was voted that there be no school on that day except in the Rogers High school and that was left optional with the teachers.

It was voted that children who have been vaccinated repeatedly without effect, be admitted to the schools on the certificate of a physician that they had been properly vaccinated.

The superintendent was directed to give his attention hereafter to all the scholars in the teaching line, instead of being compelled to confine his efforts to the first grammar grades.

The Trust Officer reported 120 complaints of absentees, of which 39 were truants.

The resignation of Miss Cynthia M. Friend as teacher in the 3d Primary grade was received and accepted.

The Committee on Finance was authorized to advertise and contract for fuel for the use of the department for the coming year.

The Committee on Buildings was authorized to make the usual summer repairs to the school buildings. The request of the teachers of the Willow street building for single desks in their schools was referred to the committee on that building to report.

The committee voted its hearty approval of the work done by Mr. Frank M. Brounson in the Rogers High School during the past year. The Rogers scholarship was continued to Francis Burdick son of ex-Mayor Burdick for another year.

The question of a general street watering at the public expense is one which the City Council should consider at an early date. It is eminently wise and proper to sprinkle the streets and avenues upon which the summer residents reside without charge to the abutters and if for no other reason than one of ultimate economy the other thoroughfares should be treated in the same way.

The fire alarm box corner Brinley and Kay streets, has on one or two occasions been mistaken for a letter box. On Thursday morning the ever watchful collector found several letters and papers crowded into the crevices of this box.

The canvass for the new City directory has just been completed and any information in relation to changes in location of business places or residences should be forwarded immediately to W. P. Clarke 202 Thames street.

After a week of exceedingly interesting and profitable work the yearly Meeting of the Society of Friends was adjourned on Thursday to meet in Portland, Maine, next year.

Clarence A. Hammett has sold for W. P. Sheffield Jr., a lot of land on Thurston avenue to W. J. T. Northup containing 6028 sq ft for $190 and other considerations.

Final Meeting of the Mechanics Association.

The final meeting of the Newport Association of Mechanics and Manufacturers, an organization that was chartered as long ago as May, 1792, was held at the State House on Thursday evening. The fifteen members present, were called to order by Vice President Edward Newton. There are now thirty seven members, each of whom will, in consequence of the action taken last night, become life members of the Historical Society. The association was organized for the purpose of promoting industry, and giving a just encouragement to ingenuity, that the manufacturers might be improved, to the general advantage, not only of the manufacturers themselves, but of the State at large. After many years of usefulness the interest in the society died out and at the January session the legislature passed an act permitting the members to wind up its affairs, and, after paying all its liabilities, to give the remainder of the property to the Newport Historical Society or some organization for educational purposes. At the meeting last night a vote was passed, after a good deal of discussion, for the transfer of all the funds to the Historical Society with the provision that the money shall form a permanent fund to be known as the Newport Association of Mechanics and Manufacturers Fund, that the interest only be used, and that the Society undertake to prepare a history of the association. President R. S. Franklin, Vice President Edward Newton, Secretary James H. Goddard and Treasurer L. L. Simmons were appointed a committee to transfer the funds, which are made up as follows: Four shares Newport National Bank, par value $50, and worth about $90 per share, two shares National Bank of Rhode Island, par value $100, worth $142 each; one share Union National Bank, par value $50, and a deposit of $307.42. The total value is about $1050. It is said that the association owns one share of the Newport Insurance Co., which has $500,000 of French spoliation claims.

Called to God's Work.

An ecclesiastical Council was convened in this city Thursday morning at the Central Baptist church to consider the propriety of ordaining to the gospel ministry Brother Charles Hord. Pastors and delegates were present from the churches composing the Narragansett Baptist Association. Rev. F. D. Binkley was chosen, moderator, and Rev. C. A. Murry, clerk. After prayer by Rev. F. Rector, the records of the church relating to the calling of this council were read. The candidate was then thoroughly examined for the space of two hours in regard to his christian experience, his call to the ministry, and his views of christian doctrine. At the close of the examination the council went into private session and voted unanimously:

- (1) That the council is fully satisfied with Brother Hord's account of his christian life and doctrinal views
- (2) That we proceed to set him apart to the work of the gospel ministry.
- (3) That a committee be appointed to arrange a programme for the ordination service.

A beautiful collation was served in vestry by the ladies of the Central church, after which the council adjourned.

The public services of ordination will be held in the Central Baptist church next Monday evening (21st) at 7:45 P. M. The following is the programme reported by the committee.

- Invocation Rev. J. N. Jeter.
- Rev. F. Rector.
- Rev. F. W. Ryder.
- Rev. T. S. Snow.
- Ordaining prayer Rev. W. Randolph D. D. Hand of Fellowship (in Swedish) Rev. P. A. Eklund of Worcester, Mass.
- Charge to Candidate Rev. O. H. Still.

Brother Hord has passed a course of study at Stockholm, Sweden, and goes after ordination to the pastorate of a Swedish church in Michigan.

Miss Adelaide Fitz-Allen, who has just closed a six months' tour as leading lady with Mlle. Rhea, was offered a re-engagement with the French star for next season. She declined, however, and Mlle. Rhea parts with her with regret. Miss Fitz-Allen will probably make a New York debut this summer, appearing in a repertoire of the standard drama. She has been on the regular boards for three years, but previous to that time was an amateur much in demand in the societies of New York and Brooklyn.

Farmers and owners of stock should always have on hand Dr. Heard's preventive of "Milk Fever" in cows. These Powders have been used with unvarying success for over 40 years in England and this country. Price 50 cents each. Dr. J. M. Heard M. R. C. V. S. 43 Bath Road, Newport.

Mr. Frederic W. Tilton, Head Master Rogers High School, is expected home from Europe about the 10th of August. He will resume his duties at the beginning of the next school year.

Captain Hammond went to Providence Thursday and got Adelaide West, alias Cornell, who is wanted here for larceny.

Not a Marriage.

The long drawn out divorce suit brought by Mrs. Alice O'Keefe Winans, so called, against Ross H. Winans, son of the late Thomas Winans of Baltimore, was brought to a conclusion in the Superior Court Thursday when Judge Ingraham made a decision confirming the report of the referee to whom the case had been referred. All the parties are known in Newport where defendant owns a summer residence and where plaintiff, with her mother, Mrs. Snalfield, occupied a cottage a few summers ago. It will be remembered that while at college in England, young Winans met the plaintiff who was then of very prepossessing appearance. She claims that by cohabitation, and admissions and introductions to several people she was made the wife of Mr. Winans under the laws of the State of New York. Miss Snalfield, after her escapades with Winans, married a man named O'Keefe, but she discovered something crooked about his life, he having been previously married and she left him and once more made for Winans, whose counsel pronounced it a case of blackmail. The testimony taken in the case was very voluminous, and upon it the referee decided that the woman was never Winans' wife according to the laws of the State of New York. Judge Ingraham confirmed the referee's decision, and Mr. Winans is clear.

Music Hall.

The initial entertainment at this new place of amusement was an exceedingly pleasant surprise to every body who was present there Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The gallery was crowded and the parquet was more than half full, many of the very best people in Newport being present and enjoying the musical comedy, Fun on the Bristol, most heartily. The stage room is larger than that found in several of the New York theatres and the scenery is far above the average. The drop scene is a well painted view of Lake Como. The New Hampshire orchestra played some very fine selections during the intervals and accompanied the singers in an acceptable manner. This new resort opens well and may be patronized by the very best people. There was not a word spoken or sung that would in the slightest way offend the most sensitive ear and it is the determination of the managers to give only first class entertainments here.

Miss Maud Howe has just returned from Gardiner, Me., where she spent some weeks with her sister, Mrs. Henry Richards, so well known as a writer of stories and verses for children, and is now at Newport for the summer with her mother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. Miss Howe gave a most delightful account of her journey into Maine in the Transcript a few days since, under the title "A Jaunt with the Spring." Miss Howe will also tell us of the gayeties of Newport from time to time during the summer in the columns of the same paper.

St. John's Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of this city, voted on Monday evening to adopt the report of their special committee on building and erect a new masonic hall on the site of the present one. The old building is to be moved back on to the vacant lot on School street and the new building will take in the four or five feet of land on Church street which has never been utilized for the building.

The marriage of Mr. William P. Weld and Miss Ellen Homer Winchester, will take place at the Arlington street church at twelve o'clock on Wednesday, June 23. They will divide their summer between Mr. Weld's house in Brookline, visits to Mr. Weld's parents at Newport, to Mr. and Mrs. Winchester, and will make several short trips in Mr. Weld's famous yacht. In the autumn they will go to Europe.

Providence's celebration of the 250th anniversary of her settlement on Thursday will be attended by many Newporters. Company B. 2d Bat. R. I. M. (Light Infantry) will be among the participants. The invitation extended to the Newport Artillery Company was declined.

Messrs. McLean and Willis, evangelists, closed their series of interesting religious meetings at Odd Fellows' Hall Wednesday evening. These meetings have been largely attended and, it is believed, accomplished much good.

A grand musical treat is promised the patrons of Music Hall on Bellevue avenue Tuesday evening when the Metropolitan Star Opera Company will present the charming opera "Chimes of Normandy."

An interesting meeting of the Equal Rights Club was held Monday night. A caucus to elect delegates to the State Convention will be held July 1st. The Convention will take place July 5th, in this city.

Mr. George Tibany, one of our oldest and most highly esteemed summer residents, died at his cottage on Narragansett avenue Tuesday evening.

Newport in 1775.

To the Editor of the Newport Mercury: We have received from the editor of the Fall River Monitor, a copy of that paper of May 29, 1886, containing the following article, which doubtless will be appreciated by your many readers, who are interested in knowing all possible particulars in regard to what took place previous to the American Revolution. Our extracts from the Newport Mercury began in 1770, and from that date up to 1775 we have published from our files as much of the then current news as we believed would be interesting; but of all those years we had nothing more intensely so than those which transpired in 1775; it was a year full of excitement to those who felt themselves on the eve of an event of the greatest importance not only to their own, but the welfare and prosperity of countless millions then unborn.

For a clear understanding of the relation of the article referred to and what we have already published in regard to the exciting times previous to the American Revolution, we give it in full; a very important part of which are extracts from the Newport Mercury of 1775. "A writer for the Newport Mercury has recently furnished for that newspaper some very interesting historical notes pertaining to the town at the commencement of the war of the American Revolution, transactions of a little more than one hundred and eleven years ago. In the issue of the Newport Mercury for May 18th, 1886, that writer is quoted from the issue of the Newport Mercury printed and published under date of April 3, 1776, gave the following:

"Yesterday morning as the ship Hose was moving further into this harbor for what reason is not certainly known, she ran upon the North end of Goat Island (now Torpedo Station), where she lay till night."

"The Hose was a schooner of 100 tons and one or two others came down from Freetown on Saturday night in a small rowing boat and went on board the above named ship; perhaps those persons are the same."

"It seems that the Freetown gang of traitors is almost broken up, many of the poor fellows created by the war, who were formerly victuals for themselves and their families, Colonel's magazine being nearly exhausted."

"The same writer for the Newport Mercury also quotes from a letter written by a gentleman at Boston, as follows:

"March 20th, 1776. The latter end of the war before last, 60, 80, 100, bayonets, &c., with several hundred men, were delivered out of a schooner in our harbor, to take up arms against their country; whose names we shall soon publish. The writer of this letter, who was a witness of the scene, says that the traitors were wicked principles and practices very soon."

"And it is hoped that the good people of this town will carefully avoid any sympathy with those vile enemies to American liberty."

"Concerning that man-of-war ship Hose that was run aground on the North end of Goat Island, an intercepted letter from Col. Gilbert aids us to determine 'for what reason' that movement was made and what was intended, and the writer might have been accomplished, but for the mishap of running aground. Let the intercepted letter tell the story."

"Freetown, April 16th, 1775. 'Honorable Sir,—I received your favor of the 13th of March. Nothing could animate the spirits of the friends of Government to a greater height than to have the approbation of the General.'

"I have taken a longboat and went to the Man-of-War and brought back a letter from Capt. Wallis to the Admiral, which I send to your care by a poor man, which is the safest way that can be thought of at this critical time."

"I hear from Capt. Wallis that he fears to venture up the harbor, the ship, fearing there is not sufficient depth of water."

"A vessel of less force might answer the purpose. 'Except there be support by land or water, we are unable to do it. The friends of Government will give out, for they are daily threatened with all kinds of punishments, even with death itself.'

"I have taken the rebels mustered from Middleborough and Berkeley, Swanzy and Dighton, and upped a hundred and forty in arms, and take our lives, or the King's arms, or perish both."

"I, Sir, ask the favor of one of His Majesty's Tenders, or some other Vessel of the force, to be at or near Freetown, in order that some of our people should be obliged to retreat, they may be taken on board."

"The request that the war vessel might be at or near Freetown, that it should come to Taunton River as far as what is now the village of Somerset, then familiarly known as Bowers or Bowers' Point, is a request that Bowers was the principal business man of Somerset at that time."

"Another letter intercepted at about the same time, set forth that Judge Durfee had learned that a ship-of-war and a force of marines were coming to aid the Freetown Tories, and that he had sent a letter to the British King and Parliament, and thus aid to our liberty in his native land, were captured by the British Country patriots, when they made that desperate onslaught upon Freetown Tories, April 9th, 1775. Those captured Tories were sent to the hands of the soldiers of the Patriot Army in the war of the American Revolution. The 'response' that Judge Durfee made to the British King and Parliament, was that he gave as exact notice as could be given of the capture of the ship-of-war, and the capture of the Tories, who had been taken on board the ship, and that he had sent a letter to the British King and Parliament, and thus aid to our liberty in his native land, were captured by the British Country patriots, when they made that desperate onslaught upon Freetown Tories, April 9th, 1775. A Phantom.

Selected Tale.

JESSIE'S PARLOR

Caroline and her father by his bright flashes of wit. He did his best to please that afternoon; but was it only for the benefit of the farmer and his elder daughter, or did his eyes wander in the direction of Jessie's slim figure? He could not understand why it was that the girl always avoided him. If she had wished to arouse his interest she could not have devised a better way. Her reserve piqued his curiosity, and he found her pretty face coming between him and the fastidious old pages of his books.

Once he went for a long walk, and returning home in the twilight, heard her at the piano, and paused to listen; but she caught sight of his figure outside the window, and the music ceased in an instant. When he entered the room he found it empty; but a little bow of ribbon lay on the carpet. Mr. Leith whistled, walked to the door, unlocked it carefully, and then picked up the ribbon bow with a shamefaced look, and actually kissed it. Then, with fingers that trembled in a most unaccountable way, he placed it in his pocket-book.

"Your sister is shy," he observed to Caroline, later on.

"It isn't that," responded Caroline, with a laugh; but she hasn't got over being turned out of her room. It was others, you know, before you came, and she hated the idea of father taking a lodger."

"Oh," said Mr. Leith, considerably enlightened, and next evening, as Jessie was eating an apple in the orchard, she enemy bore down on her before she could beat a retreat. "Miss Jessie," he called, taking off his hat, "you must not run away. I want to speak to you."

"What is it?" asked Jessie, coldly, throwing her apple over the hedge.

She had no longer any appetite for it. "I want to apologize for having unconsciously taken possession of your little parlor. It makes me feel like an interloper."

"Who told you it was my parlor?" asked Jessie, trying to steel her heart against him; but thinking all the same, what a handsome man he was, with his blue eyes, and tawny beard.

"Never mind who told me," said Gerald Leith, with a smile. "I know I have been unconsciously depriving you of a piano ever since I have been here, and I want you to forgive me."

"It is I who ought to ask your forgiveness," returned Jessie. "I have often stolen in to have an hour with my piano, when you have been out."

She smiled and colored as she spoke, unable to resist the winning sweetness of his voice and manner.

They stood watching the moon above the tree tops, talking pleasantly, until Caroline came to the door, and called her sister.

"Where on earth have you been, Jessie?" she asked.

"Talking to Mr. Leith," returned Jessie, as she followed her into the room.

"Wonders will never cease," exclaimed Caroline. "I thought you hated him; at least, I think he would talk any day over with that pleasant voice of his."

Jessie thought so too; but she did not give vent to her opinion in words. She was looking unusually well; a color came to her cheeks, that made her look lovely. There was a change in her tonight, and her sister was vaguely conscious of it, as the girl stood looking down into the glowing fire in the kitchen grate.

"Our Jessie is growing a regular beauty," observed Caroline to her father, when her sister had gone up to bed.

"Handsome is as handsome does," returned Mr. Maybrick, puffing away at his pipe. Jessie's education had cost him no end of money, while the more unusual Caroline had put pounds in his pocket.

But Mr. Maybrick had no eye for that. He was not like his lodger, who could get very little sleep for thinking of a pair of bright eyes and a slim next figure.

On the next morning, as Mr. Leith sat at breakfast, he caught sight of Jessie looking to a stoutly-built, curly-headed fellow; and his heart gave a jealous throb.

Who was that rustic she seemed so interested in? He could not be her sweetheart—surely a girl like Jessie could not throw herself away on such awkward cul.

Mr. Leith tried to read his newspaper, but forgot the happy-looking couple in the garden; but it was of no use.

There they were, parading up and down in full view of his window, and as and then their voices were wafted to him on the breeze.

He felt he could stand it no longer, and slammed down the window in a rage. What was the use of coming to the country for quiet, if people could persist in making such a racket? He took his hat, and went for a walk, and when he returned home, had the assurance of seeing that rustic through the kitchen window, dining with the family.

Mr. Leith closed the door of his room; and he could not shut out that fellow's silly laughter.

If he is a frequent guest, my stay here will not be of very long duration," he thought.

Presently, to his intense annoyance, he saw Jessie and the stranger out in the garden again, and after his own father had been served, he heard Miss Caroline calling them in to tea; and that the young man's name was—detestable name! Mr. Leith had never felt more miserable than he did that evening, and his life had not been so void of trouble.

Mr. Leith was sitting in the dark, and suddenly heard voices outside the door.

"I am sure he is out, child," said Caroline. "The lamp is not lit; you go in and play for a little while, and Mr. Leith will never be the wiser."

He did not hear Jessie answer—the door was not so loud; but the her opened, and she came into the room going straight over to the piano.

Mr. Leith held his breath, lying back in the arm chair, while Jessie played softly in the darkness.

He could see the dim outline of her form, as she sat at the piano; for what little light there was fell full upon her. He was angry with her—most unreasonably angry, but he could not lose the chance of speaking to her alone.

"Miss Jessie," he said quietly.

Jessie gave a faint start. He had frightened her so much, that she trembled like a leaf. She was going to run out of the room, when his voice arrested her movement.

"I shall be sorry that I revealed myself, if you are going to run away," he went on. "It is not often I have the chance of hearing you playing, Miss Jessie."

Jessie sat down at the piano, but she did not play. Her little brown hands were trembling so much. Mr. Leith rose, and stood by her side.

"I shall be going back to London, soon," he said, "and it will be pleasant to think of these few moments spent with you at the piano."

"You are going away soon," faltered Jessie, and something in her voice made Gerald Leith's heart beat more quickly.

"I saw you with that young fellow to-day," he said abruptly. "You seemed very happy."

"Bob and I are always like that," observed Jessie, her eyes beginning to sparkle, and a little smile quivering on her sweet lips. But Gerald Leith could not see these signs of merriment.

"I hope you always will be," he said.

"May I wish you every happiness?"

"You may if you like," said Jessie with an odd little break in her voice, or she was trying hard to smother her laughter.

"When is it to be?" asked Mr. Leith, trying to speak lightly, but not succeeding very well.

"When is what to be?" asked Jessie with a little gasp.

"Your marriage, of course," returned Mr. Leith rather coldly, for he knew that she was laughing at him.

"I think you are putting the cart before the horse," observed Jessie demurely.

"What do you mean?" he asked impatiently.

"I mean," said Jessie, suddenly growing dignified, "that I have no lover, so it is rather too premature to talk of my marriage."

"Then that young man?" began Mr. Leith.

"Is the affianced husband of my dearest friend." As she uttered these words Jessie rose from the piano and to herself clasped in the arms of her father's lodger.

"And to think," said Miss Maybrick afterwards, "that you should make all at fuss about Mr. Leith coming, and on marry him, after all!" was never surprised in my life."

"It is the best thing that could have happened to her," observed her father.

"She never would have been worth anything as a farmer's wife!" and indeed it is true, but Jessie never wanted to be a farmer's wife, and is quite content with the destiny that has made her Mrs. Gerald Leith.

Fifty-Five Years of Service Under Eleven Administrations.

Probably Mr. James H. Marr, the chief clerk of first Assistant Postmaster General Stevenson, has been longer engaged than any other living employee in the department service of the government. Mr. Marr is 80 years old, and entered the service in 1831 under the name William T. Barry of Kentucky, the prominent Jackson's first postmaster general. In that year Mr. Marr came to Washington from Maryland, his native state, and accepted an humble clerkship in the department. He has since unavailingly been repeatedly promoted for years past has held, as now, the position of chief clerk for the first assistant postmaster general. The first assistant his office was the scene of numerous hearty congratulations on the arrival of the 55th anniversary of his entrance upon his duties of his first clerkship in the department. Postmaster General Vilas, first Assistant General Stevenson and their subordinates gave the venerable man cordial handshakes and warm verbal expressions of esteem. The old man is justly proud of the venerable record he has made running through more than half a century. He has served in that period under 27 postmaster generals and 11 presidential administrations, the beginning of his official career ante-dating by six years the death of the President of the United States. His record is a stainless one and reflects honor upon his name. It attests the universal respect of his associates.

A Dreadful Female.

The eccentric Mme. Asie de Valreire, who recently came off victorious in a duel fought on the classic field of Waterloo with an American lady, animated with a desire for further notoriety, is anxious to enter the lists again. The amiable lady has come to the conclusion that the doctrines of the Salvation Army "are pernicious and hurtful" to France, and has sent a threatening and angry letter on the subject to the Maréchal Bugey. Miss Booth is determined to quit France directly and to fly back to her own country and to preach the "ism which, like another Luther"—in comparison of which she may well stand—she is trying to create. If this latest request is not at once complied with, Mme. Valreire will consider herself "injured in the person of her country" and seek reparation in a duel. Miss Booth has responded through an interviewer that she has not the slightest intention to obey the command or accept the alternative.

An exclamation that came straight to the heart of a thorough Bohemian: "Ah! if I only had all the money I have, how rich I should be!"

Unfilial "Prince John."

While his father was President young John Van Buren visited England, and as the son of the President of the United States, he received great attention. He dined with the Queen, who was then a young girl, where his superior grace of manners, fine conversational powers and witfulness made him appear to greater advantage than the titled flunkies who were around Her Majesty. He attended one of the balls at Buckingham palace and danced with her, and the story was told that Her Majesty became very sweet on him. It was this incident, that gave him the cognomen of 'Prince John.' There was another story in circulation about him which illustrates his want of special reverence for his father. The old gentleman and John had a habit of lying in bed in the morning. Finally, one day the former said to his son that a reform must be instituted—that both must rise earlier. The hopeful agreed and suggested that the first one who got up should go to the room of the other and pull him off the bed! This was agreed to. John was out all the following night on a 'lark' and did not reach home till next morning about five. He went to his father's room and took hold of him for the purpose of pulling him out of bed. The old gentleman protested against being disturbed, saying he had not had sufficient sleep. "Look here, governor, it was your own proposition that we should institute a reform in regard to lying in bed so late. Here I am, up at your request, and you won't fulfill your part of the agreement. Remember, the one who got up first was to pull the other out of bed. So now get up, or I'll pull you out." "Tell it not in Gath!" This young scamp made the President of the United States get up in spite of himself. After seeing the old gentleman dress himself the rascal sneaked to his own room and was soon in his bed asleep. The story got out by John telling on his father to a lot of boon companions. John afterwards became a famous lawyer and politician.

The Kind of Watchman He Was.

"I was up in the Washington oil field a few days ago," said a gentleman today, "and on my return, I had to wait nearly an hour for a train, and amused myself by taking in the sights around the station. A lady evangelist was there getting in her work in first-class car until she came up to a neatly dressed young man, who I noticed had been very intently perusing the columns of Zion's Watch Tower. 'My young friend are you a watchman on Zion's walls?' asked the lady. The young man blushed to the roots of his hair, and said: 'No ma'am; I am only a night watchman in Caunsburg, but am looking for promotion soon.' The crowd fairly shouted with laughter, and the lady joined in.—[Pittsburg Leader.]

He Was Perfectly Harmless.

"How, how," laughed Clarence Fitzhugh, going into the Queen City Club tonight the other evening. "I've had such an experience on the street, don't you know."

"Ah, indeed," inquired Captain Johnson, "what was it?"

"Why, my dear fellow, just as I was coming in found a few hoodlums surrounded me and shouted 'hooray, hooray,' in a most threatening manner, don't you know."

"Did you knock any of them down?"

"Oh, no."

"You didn't? Well, what did you do?"

"Why, my dear fellow, I ran up the steps and wailed wappily, and when I reached the top I shook my umbrella over them, ejaculated 'wats,' and slammed a door in their faces with great gah."

A Delicate Question.

"So your boy has left home, Mr. Benson?"

"Yes, Mr. Briggs."

"Left you for good?"

"I can't say, Mr. Briggs, whether it for good or for bad. He has been appointed clerk in the Legislature."

At the Circus. De Bagges—"Hello! I didn't expect to see you here."

Briggs—"I really care nothing for this sort of thing, but my children enjoy it much."

"Where are the children?"

De Bagges—"See them."

"They are at home, my little dears. Wouldn't be safe to bring them in such a crowd. When I come home I will tell them about the performance."—[Philadelphia Call.]

What is the cure for gossip? Simply culture. There is a great deal of gossip that has no malignity in it. Good natured people talk about their neighbors because—and only because—they have nothing else to talk about. Gossip is always a personal confession of malice or imbecility, and the young should not only shun it, but should, with the most careful watchfulness, ward themselves against every temptation to indulge in it.

A mail bag that was lost in a Canadian lake three years ago was found recently by men employed in the lumbering trade, and, the Toronto Globe relates, the contents of the bag were found in a fair state of preservation after three years' soak. Many of the letters contained money.

A blushing young woman entered the Circuit Clerk's office in Perryville, Mo., the other day, and asked if a certain young man had taken out a license to marry a certain young woman. She looked much relieved when the clerk told her. "Well don't give him one, she said; I've got the first claim on him."

A Country bride (looking over the bill of fare)—"John, what's 'Patty de fee'?"

"Groom—'Sh! Don't talk to the bride, or people will think we're ignorant. It must be French for celery."

The Homely and the Fashionable Girl.

Many foolish men, however, so desire the companionship of fashionable beauty and grace that scores of utterly useless, silly society girls would be engaged within a month were these same unselfish and mistaken men able to afford it. But they frankly say they cannot afford it, and no sort of sentimental roving will alter that cold hard fact. The great mass of women, both in fashionable society and out of it, are common-place and mediocre in both looks and talents, and cannot win husbands by bringing them either fame or fortune, and can best get them by showing a tremendous ability to take care of themselves. I state it as an axiom that no homely girl who can earn her own living and do it well gets three offers where a really good-looking fashionable girl gets one. And a handsome woman in any class, known to be a good cook and manager, never wanted for a husband, and often captures the grandest prizes. In this age of competition a woman must not be only pretty and witty, she must be energetic and useful, and the more able she is to make money, or manage money, the more independent she is of a man, and the more he desires her and will have her. Fair Ariadne, as you are not gifted in music, art or literature, learn to cook, sew and weave. Not the fancy branches, but the solid middle-class cooking, sewing and sewing that will help your husband over the hard places if he comes to them, and though you are beautiful as a dream and marry a millionaire, none the less will he be proud of your abilities and boast of them and believe in them. Yet, after all, there is plenty of unselfish love in the world, Ariadne, and learn from others happier than yourself, and compel your share of it to come to you. Stand no longer on the shore watching the retreating form of a hero, who leaves you without regret; turn away from fickle waves and fading illusions of the sea and come back to the busy work-a-day world, and put your duty fingers and listless mind into some of the pressing, needed labor of the world, and before you dream of some earnest man will elope your maid and say, "let us live and work together."

Removal of Warts.

A correspondent of the Therapeutic Gazette announces through its columns the virtues of castor oil in the removal of warts. Constantly applied for from one to four or six weeks each day—that is, once a day—it has not failed in many hands, says the writer, in any case of any size or long standing. The time it takes may try the patience of the user, but if faithfully used they will get their reward in the removal of the wart without leaving any scar. I have used it with some success in other warts, and had benefit enough to credit further trial. It might, he adds, be a success in the removal of certain kinds of cancer, especially scirrhous tumors.

A Mid-Night Son-Rise.

The clock was on the stroke of 12 and the old man Stuffy was awakened by muffled voices in the hall below.

"Wife," he said, "what is that?"

"It's Sary and her young man," replied the wife.

"Paint morning, is it?" he asked.

"I don't know what time it is."

"I will see about this," he said, getting up and putting on his boots.

In a few minutes his wife heard a tall thin down stairs, and shortly after a old man returned.

"I am not an astronomer," he said, and I cannot explain it, but I saw the star rise a few minutes ago, and it is w about midnight."

Then he looked reflectively down at the toe of his boot, took them both off and went out the light and then went back to bed.—[Mercurial Traveller.

This ticket is sold me puts me next to a nigger. Do you hear?—next to a nigger. Treasurer: Well, tell the nigger if he doesn't let it, he can have his seat changed.

"Yes," said a Democratic office-seeker from the West, "it's all true about a President's marriage. It's a true thing. I get it from headquarters."

"What do you mean by headquarters?"

"The White House. I was just up here to see about the post office in my town, and they told me Mr. Cleveland is engaged."—[New York Sun.

Beware of Scrofula

Scrofula is probably more general than any other skin disease. It is insidious in character, and manifests itself in running sores, pustular eruptions, boils, swellings, enlarged joints, abscesses, sore eyes, etc. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures all trace of scrofula from the blood, driving it into, and out of, the system.

I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for a year had two running sores on my neck, took five bottles Hood's Sarsaparilla, and am now cured.

Salt Rheum

One of the most disagreeable diseases caused by impure blood. It is readily cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier.

William Spies, Ellyria, O., suffered greatly from erysipelas and salt rheum, caused by drinking tobacco. At times his hands would swell and bleed. He tried various preparations without aid; finally took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and now says "I am entirely well."

My son had salt scrofula on his hands and feet, and was cured of his legs. He took Hood's Sarsaparilla and is entirely cured." J. R. Gibson, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

Aunt Nell's Blackberries

I must tell you about those blackberries,—four large, luscious, juicy, jet-black balls, hanging close to the ground in a tangle of briars and bitter-weed. That is, there were four when Roy

Two in either hand; it was as much as the little fat fingers could manage. The sharp thorns pulled at his frock; long, trailing vines twisted around the impatient little feet; down he went, face foremost; away flew his treasures, and by the time he had picked himself up, and straightened the shaker sun-bonnet, the old Brahma rooster only a few inches shorter than Rex himself.

Roy clutched at the remaining three, struck an attitude of defiance, and looked daggers at the enemy; whereupon he later, turning as rapidly as his dignity—or size—would allow, walked gravely away, looking thoughtfully this side and that, as if studying the possibilities of future reprisals.

"Two ones for Aunt Nell, an' one for my mamma, 'cause Aunt Nell's comin' home," said Roy, walking as gravely in the opposite direction, up the long path

Ordinarily, he wouldn't have minded, having learned by experience there was no room to crawl under, but how about the berries? One, two, three thrusts into the short arm between the pickets, and then lay in a row on the farther side, after which Roy himself squirmed.

The sun-bonnet which he hated, but was obliged to wear whenever there was a hot sun or high wind—being by far the largest part of him, caught and retained much of the heat and wind.

"Now was he to know which way to start, and how could he help sitting his little heel squarely on the next biggest berry, before he was fairly headed in the right direction.

"Now what'll my mamma do, 'cause for one's all skwushed?" said he, sorrowfully, closing each hand tightly on

The flight of stone stops leading to the porch door was the next difficulty to be met and conquered. Roy, as yet, used both hands and feet a necessity climbing. So he laid the berries carefully on the first step, while his two little hands were on the second, and his two little et on the first; then as carefully transferred to the fourth, and so on, in regular rotation, berries, hands and feet, till the whole half dozen were landed at the broad piazza—the berries coated with dust and grit, and tiny red stains setting each little pain.

pected to pass without being nipped the rear, and having to right-about-the, and pull from its pitiless jaws at last half of his stout little frock.
For a moment he hesitated, then a right thought stirred somewhere under the huge sun-helmet.
Laying down one berry, he pulled open the door and threw in the other;
and went the door another pull on her toss, and both berries were safe inside.

A third pull, and Roy followed, the door shutting so spitefully that time—all the world as if ashamed at being outwitted—that Roy found himself a tie-back, lighter even than Aunt Nell's—not to mention the total eclipse caused by the shaker's pitching over the edge.

Nothing daunted, however, he punched back the sun-bonnet, unscrewed himself from the door, gave a little shake to settle things into shape again, picked up the bruised and battered berries, and marching calmly into the parlor, dropped them triumphantly into the pocket of Aunt Nell's new muslin frock, just ruffled and ribboned for the much toil and trouble.—[Youth's Com-

THE ZANE PATENT SANITARY WATER CLOSET
IS THE BEST IN THE WORLD

In a sanitary point of view, as it thoroughly cleanses the bowl and discharges every time it is used. Can be used in place of the old style water closet without altering the pipes. Particular attention is given to the best closet made and its installation into its merits.

The Boston Water Board voted it a fit and proper water closet to be used in the city of Boston.

Now in use. Price $25 complete. Every closet warranted.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.

Fill the wood with some of filler; the filler has been rubbed a few times (ten hours to dry). Then rub on a fine polish with a piece of cloth; let it on for fifteen minutes, and polish by rubbing with a stiff brush, with a woolen cloth. For carved work the polish should be rubbed with Turpentine, and applied with brush. Never use the Polish over oil of any kind. The Polish can be used with- out, with a good effect.

Medicine.

Ayer's
Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household.
Many a mother, startled in the night by the outcries of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 160 West 123 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B.
Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's
Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs.
J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup.
It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs.
Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Croup and Coughs, we take

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

and the inconvenience is soon forgotten."

THE GLORY OF A MAN IS IN HIS STRENGTH.
Nerve or Physical Force when Lost Quickly Regained by Consulting
Dr. C. J. Lewis,

WHO after intense study and deep researching, has discovered a new, extraordinary, quick, certain and inexpensive cure for diseases of the Brain and Spinal Cord, Symptoms, Nervous Disorders, Epilepsy, Hysteria, and all diseases of the Nervous and Generative Systems. THIS NEW AND MARVELLOUS MEDICAL DISCOVERY
cures the most desperate forms of Nervous disorders in both young and old. To debilitated youth it bestows the vigor of manhood, and in advanced age it establishes the vigor of youth without the possibility of failure. URSARY COMPLAINTS, Acute or Chronic Discharges, Stricture, Retention of Urine, Gravel, Kidney or Bladder Disorders, Syphilis, Secondary Symptoms, Eruptions, Skin Diseases, are all absolutely cured without the use of mercury, copious or injections. No restriction in diet, or prolonged incurable, are particularly invited to visit Dr. Lewis. A written guarantee of cure given in all cases arranged for. In practice 20 years.

Dr. Lewis is frequently consulted by many who have been completely discouraged of ever being cured after having been treated with various advertised nostrums, which invariably do more harm than good as every phase of disease demands a different kind of treatment. To those who may have been disappointed, Dr. Lewis would say content him and he will restore the declined vitality of the system. He is a physician of the highest order, and his treatment is based on the principles of the science of medicine.

Dr. Lewis is permanently located at 129 Friendship Street, Providence, R. I.
One door from Richmond street (off Broad-street). Office hours all the year round from 9 to 5 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays, 10 to 2, not later except by appointment, letter or telegram.
Information Effectually Free. Female Complaints Skillfully Treated.

Notice to Country Patients.
Dr. Lewis will, on full description of case, with fee enclosed, immediately send a supply of his valuable medicines, accompanied with instructions and directions, for the cure of the above disagreeable complaints.

Love in the Orchard.

Under the apple trees when, in May,
Through fresh white blossoms a breeze was blowing,
I saw a pair of lovers stray—
A pretty picture well worth the showing.
All earth seemed a song in tune.
Sweet were the grasses and lush young clover,
And down by the doorway that leads to June
The birds were flying hither and over.
The rattle ran on its shingly bed
With a gently rippling musical laughter.
And thick, soft clouds were white o'er-head,
And the sky was blue before and after.

A pretty maid pulls down a bough
To catch the orchard's sweetest flavor—
To him who stands beside her now
Love joins to it its subtler flavor.
She is the one thought of his heart,
The sought-for crown to life's completeness;
He feels the glow these days impart,
But finds in her a rarer sweetness.
So hand-in-hand along they go,
With throbs of joy and fond elation,
Amidst the apple blossoms they know
And feel Love's great transfiguration.

George Washington as a Rural Fireman.

Charles Levi Woodbury says that George Washington's last words were,
"Never trust a nigger with a gun."
That has the air of an adaptation from "Never take the horse from the door," but perhaps it is a correct quotation. When I was down in Alexandria the other day, however, I found no one who recognized it, but I heard some other things about George Washington which were quite as interesting.
I learned for the first time that he was a great fireman. He was one of the founders of the Friendship Fire Company, which still exists, and when he first went to the Continental Congress in Philadelphia he bought a machine for the company for $400. He used to run to fires with it whenever he happened to be in town, like the public-spirited citizen that he was. It is remembered that a few months before his death he was riding through Alexandria, when the fire-bells rang. He rode to the fire and was surprised to find that the machine was poorly manned and very feebly worked.
Riding up to a number of well-dressed men standing on the curbstone, he said: "Gentlemen, I am surprised to see you standing idle here; it is your duty to take these matters." With that he got off his horse and himself mounted the machine. You may be sure it was well worked from that time on.

The Boycott at Home.

"Now, that you've got your ten per cent. increase, John, you must be more liberal with your allowance for household expenses. I want a new ten-bottle, and the wash boiler needs—"
"Can't afford it, Mollie; I'm only making living wages now, and you must wait until I can declare a dividend."
"Then you refuse to arbitrate?"
"There's nothing to arbitrate. I can't!"

"Very well! I shall order a strike at once. The kitchen fire shall be drawn this noon, and if you dare to bring another woman into this house, to cook as much as a kettle of mush, I'll smash the cook stove to smithereens. Come, children, we must begin to boycott
our father immediately!"—[Boston

The Dead Worker.

Poor hands! fold them over her breast,
So hard, so brown, so cold!
They have done their work and have won their rest,
The' they were no gold.
Theirs was a battle for bread,
How they struggled and grappled and bled!

Poor hands! fold them gently, for they Once lay in a mother's breast
All dimpled and pink and easily
As birds in a nest,
And a mother's heart once leapt
As into her bosom they crept.

Poor hands! give them flowers to carry Down into the grave, for they Were too work-worn and too world-weary
To pause by the way
And pluck them; bring lilies and roses
And fill the stiff fingers with posies.

Poor feet! when the way was cold
And winding and nettle-strewn,
We passed them by with only a sigh
For the blood-prints under the moon;
Now that the life blood is froze
Bring the warm gaiters and hose.

Poor eyes! close them too—how they stare—
Nay! place no gold on that brow,
It was lack of that made furrows there,
She needs none now.

She goes to the mansion whose floor
Is paved with the costliest ore.

Poor eyes! no leisure they had
To look up at the sky
And see if 'twas blue, as the poet said,
But now they see,
To-day they are not so dim
But they will open on him.

Newport County News.

MIDDLETOWN.

Sunday the 13th inst. being Quaker Sabbath, a large number of residents of the town visited Newport to attend the services of the Friends. At the M. E. church there was no preaching in the afternoon and a large number were in the city in consequence; in the evening the usual services were held at the Four Corners and a good number were present. The church will be open in the evening for public service one Sunday in each month in the upper audience room, services to commence at 7 p. m. hereafter instead of at 7:30 as formerly.

On Sunday at the Sabbath School the officers of the school were elected for the present year as follows: Superintendent of Sabbath School—J. W. Willett. Assistant Superintendent of Sabbath School—A. W. Chase. Treasurer of Sabbath School—Wm. Slocum.

The former superintendent Mr. Truman Congdon having declined re-election. It is well to remark here that by the retiring from the office of superintendent of the Sunday School Mr. Truman B. Congdon will be much missed by the older as well as the younger members of the school, he having been the first superintendent elected by this church some thirty years ago and always having been at his post of duty. Only on some three or four occasions has this faithful officer been absent from his post and then by severe illness at home in his family. It is hoped however that the same interest taken by him in the school and its progress in the past will be manifested in the future and that the same watchful eye will ever be open to its welfare.

Mr. Thomas W. Sherman has been confined at his home by a severe illness. The roads during the past week have been well patronized by our neighbors from the city.

Mr. Daniel Hazard, of Ally road, has met with a severe loss during the week, a choice cow of his own raising having sickened and died.

Congratulations are again in order. This time Love Lane takes the benefit, Mr. and Mrs. W. Sisson (nee Brigham). The boys have opened the bathing season at the Third beach and those Jersey mosquitoes are again feasting to their hearts content.

Mr. John Allan and family with Mr. Wm. H. Boone of Newport are at the Peckham villa for the summer, near the Third beach.

Mr. J. Lincoln Sherman who received a severe bruising while out riding some weeks ago, is reported to be improving and is able to ride out in his carriage.

Mr. David Curtis is reported out and about his duties.

CHURCH SERVICE.—Next Sunday will be observed as Children's Day by the Methodist church at Middletown. At 2:30 p. m. there will be a sermon to the children, the little folks doing the singing. At 7 o'clock the Sunday school will give a concert. From this time until further notice, the Sunday evening service in this church will begin at 7 instead of 7:30 o'clock.

The administrator upon the estate of Joseph P. Bailey was granted liberty, to sell at private sale, such articles and property enumerated in the inventory thereof, as he may deem for the interest of said estate, at not less than the inventory appraisal.

TOWN COUNCIL.—Messrs. Thomas B. and David Buffum respectfully propose to join the town in making a fence on the north side of the highway on Ferry Neck, the same was received and referred to the second Monday in July next.

Joseph G. Gifford surveyor of Highways in District No. 13 was allowed the sum of $25, extra to enable him to complete the repairs of the late washout in said district.

Mr. Gifford was ordered to obtain two new shares for the Road Machine, belonging to this town, and to make such other repairs as are needed.

Resteem P. Manchester, Albert Sisson, Wm. A. Chase and Charles H. Potter were appointed appraisers of damages done by dogs.

The Town Clerk was ordered to have 400 copies of the tax list printed for distribution.

The following bills against the town were allowed and orders granted for the payment of the same from the Town's Treasury; of Charles H. Dyer for repairs of highway district No. 10, $103.90; of Overseers of the Poor for assistance rendered Richmond W. Dennis $10; Alexander G. Barker, $7.50; Ruth Barker, $10; Royal Devol, $7.50; Mary Ann Hibbs, $5. Adjourned to the second Monday July next, at which time all unfinished business was continued.

August Holmont has taken his cows and sheep, from "Oakland Farm" to his farm on Long Island. It is reported that he wishes to sell "Oakland".

The Richard Field estate was sold, at public auction on Tuesday 15th, inst. by Jonathan A. Sisson administrator, for the sum of $4000. William Field being the purchaser.

Mr. Charles O. Thomas one of our enterprising gardeners, dug and sent to Providence, last week the first new potatoes, of the season. Mr. Thomas usually has the first potatoes, and a few years since he dug his first, on the 27th, of May.

Mrs. Charles Horton and Mrs. James Davis, of New Bedford, Mass., have been spending a few days, with their sister Mr. Edward Coggeshall.

Strawberries are very productive this year, some of our growers picking nearly a thousand boxes a day. Should the sun shine out brightly for a few days, probably over a thousand boxes would be reached by some growers.

Mr. John B. Fish died on Monday. Mr. Fish had been a sufferer from Bright's Disease.

TIVERTON.

The strawberry festival held in Temple Chapel last week was enjoyed by all present, and the snug little sum of $25 netted for the society.

Steamer Seacoast, Captain Philip C. Grinnell, caught 1000 barrels of menhaden, mostly in Mount Hope Bay.

Judson street, North Tiverton, west of Main, which has been in anything but good condition since the heavy washing last winter, is being thoroughly repaired, and when completed will greatly benefit all who have occasion to travel over it. The work is under the superintendence of Mr. Alfred G. Springer.

Mrs. Andrew Robeson, Jr., of Brookline, is at her summer residence on Nannauket for the season.

The funeral services of the late Noah Holt were solemnized at the residence of Mr. Joseph D. Humphrey on Monday noon. Rev. H. T. Arnold officiated. The remains were interred in the Humphrey Cemetery, on Nannauket. The bearers were Mr. Harrison Seabury, Mr. Henry Ring and Mr. P. D. Humphrey.

JAMESTOWN.

Mr. Thomas H. Clarke is making some piazza and other improvements to his house, which will add much to its comfort and appearance. The new school house that was opened last year has never been dedicated, and Mr. Clarke, who is the superintendent, proposes that it shall be soon, and he hopes to make the occasion a very interesting one.

A strawberry festival was given at the Town Hall on Tuesday evening by the ladies of the South Baptist Church. Thirty-two is believed to be the exact number of dogs that inhabit this island, and twenty-nine of them have paid their taxes for this year.

The Conant Park Hotel opened on Tuesday, and all parts of the island are now in working order for the season of 1886.

RHODE ISLAND.

The Narragansett boat club of Providence held its June regatta on the Seekonk river Wednesday. The course was one mile with turn. Nelson S. Davis won the championship of the club, defeating James Foster by two feet in 7:16. T. K. Gardner won the junior championship. The winners of the events are considered candidates for the national regatta at Albany in July.

It has been decided to open a "relic room" in Styles Memorial Hall, Providence, on June 22, in connection with the Williams family reunion, and all articles that belonged to Roger Williams or his immediate descendants are being collected as far as possible, for exhibition.

About 250 of the New York Seventh Regiment veterans are expected on the 24th, to participate in the 250th anniversary of the settlement of Providence.

One peculiar feature of Providence's growth is that while the valuation of personal estate was increased from about $5,000,000 in 1832 to $41,000,000 in 1884, it had decreased in 1880 to less than $28,000,000, and this notwithstanding the great increase in the value of real estate, and the fact that the population had almost doubled.

MASSACHUSETTS.

The skull of a man, dug up at Northboro, last year, proves a puzzle for the naturalists. Prof. Putnam of the Peabody Museum at Cambridge, says it is the most remarkable and interesting skull he ever studied. Not one of the great collection of heads in the Peabody Museum is anything like it.

The largest manufacturer in the world. Each

The attention of the public is respectfully called to the fact that the country is being flooded with advertisements of assortments of fireworks which, to a casual observer, seems very desirable, they being so worded as to appear to contain the best quality of goods, but they are, in fact, of old style, plain white goods, and of little to make.

The proof of this is the very careful omission of the word COLORED (which means a display of Red, Green, Blue, Gold, and other colors in fire), and the insertion in its place of the word

"Brilliant" or "Silver," or some other high-sounding term meaning nothing, but simply used to cover up the absence of the word

COLORED, which is not seen of importance to the unskilled purchaser, who probably supposes that all fireworks are COLORED, but when fire is these imitation fireworks and fireworks composed of all plain white fire, he then discovers his great disgust that the quality of the word COLORED meant nothing.

There is one thing certain, any house selling only COLORED fireworks will take great care to let it be known, as these goods are far superior in every way.

The Unexcelled Fireworks

first made the new departure of manufacturing all COLORED fireworks, and as their great success has stimulated a number of pretenders to copy after them, they would caution all purchasers to inquire before buying whether
